EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S REPORT

1. FINANCIAL REPORT:

- Operating Budget: During the special session, the legislature approved an operating budget for the 2011-2013 biennium that amounts to $236,000 for FY 2012 and $219,000 for FY 2013 with a total of $455,000. The legislature provided an additional $4,000 for FY 2012 to cover an unanticipated unemployment claim from a former staff member.
- Unemployment Claim: At the end of last year, the agency received an unemployment claim for a former executive assistant. This claim directly impacted the agency's discretionary budget and limited agency spending. It is unknown whether additional claims will be received at this time.

2. MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION:

- Casework System: The agency continues implementing an integrated online casework system. The latest trends show a rise in requests related to financial resources for education and employment resources. The commission has taken proactive steps to supply information in both of these areas to the community. Starting in November, on a monthly basis, an E-Jobs Alert is disseminated to the statewide community on opportunities. In December, a national scholarship guide specific to resources for Asian American and Pacific Islanders was posted to the agency's website and a request for hard copies to be provided at each of our statewide board meetings was made.

3. LEGISLATIVE SESSION:

- Special Session: On December 14, 2011, lawmakers adjourned from the special session approving a nearly $500 million package to address the shortfall after a September 2011 forecast that reduced expected state revenues by nearly $2 billion.
- Regular Legislative Session: The regular legislative session began on January 9, 2012 in Olympia. At the November board meeting, the commission approved its 2012 legislative priorities in the areas of: education, healthcare, human services, economic development, and immigration. The commission's legislative priorities can be found on the agency's website. We thank Commissioner Aragon for her work in serving as our legislative liaison.
- API Legislative Day Update: API Legislative Day will not be taking place in February. Instead, the community will host a large summit at the Tacoma Dome in the fall of 2012. The statewide Asian Pacific Islander Coalition is organizing this event.

4. UPDATE ON PROGRAMS AND PROJECTS:

- Commission Launches Initiatives: In the summer of 2011, in partnership with the community, the Asian American and Pacific Islander Voices in Education Initiative was launched. Last month, the commission launched a second initiative focused on health disparities. Commissioner Aragon is the lead for the AAPI Health Disparity Initiative. More information is available under the Health and Human Services section of this report. Detailed summaries of both initiatives can be found on our website.
- Informational Reports Page: Phase Two of a new "Reports" webpage with additional sections on the commission's priority areas of health, human services, economic development, and immigration is completed. This follows the Phase One launch focusing on education. A collection of recently issued reports and publications on AAPI issues is hosted on this page. Policymakers, community members, and the ethnic media interested in recent data should be aware of these national, state and local resources.
- E-Jobs Alert: Starting in November, on a monthly basis, an electronic alert of job listings received by our office has been sent out. This new resource for the AAPI community was developed in response to a rise of requests and data indicating that those Asians unemployed face longer durations of unemployment in comparison to other groups. Community members have expressed a positive response to this new service. Past job listings are posted on our website.
- Community Connections: In January, the commission launched "Community Connections," a new program that aims to institutionalize a longstanding infrastructure within the AAPI community that allows for regular direct in-person exchanges of information and offers an alternative forum for the community to raise issues of concern. Approximately twenty organizations participate in this program.
- Asian Pacific American Heritage Month: In 2000, the State of Washington formally recognized the month of May as Asian Pacific American Heritage Month. The annual event celebrating the month will be at the Seattle Center on May 6, 2012. The Asian Pacific Directors Coalition is hosting an art contest to showcase Asian Pacific Islander heritage and culture in America. The deadline for this contest is April 26, 2012. Commissioner Takamura serves as our liaison.

The Office of the Insurance Commissioner is a sponsor to the commission's AAPI Health Disparity Initiative and a representative will be speaking on the Affordable Care Act at each of the initiative events. - Department of Commerce: Joe Olson connected with staff to discuss programs and policies impacting the AAPI community. The commission continues to advocate for outreach to AAPI small businesses and recently provided contacts for each statewide AAPI chamber of commerce. The initiative's primary goal is to achieve health equity for Asian Americans, Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islanders in Washington State. The main focus areas of the initiative are data collection, treatment, prevention, and education on the Affordable Care Act. As part of the initiative, a series of events held in partnership with the community focusing on increasing awareness and encouraging testing for prevention will be held. The first event will be in January. This is a historic initiative for the community because of the collective sponsorship by several state agencies, including: the Commission on Asian Pacific American Affairs, the Governor's Interagency Council on Health Disparities, Office of the Insurance Commissioner, Health Care Authority, and the Department of Social and Health Services. Commissioner Aragon serves as a liaison to this initiative.

GUEST SPEAKERS

The Governor's Interagency Council on Health Disparities

- Yris Lance, Community Relations Liaison on the Governor's Interagency Council on Health Disparities, thanked the council and the commission for their work, and introduced the panel of speakers to discuss current AAPI health disparities.

Washington State Board of Health

- Dr. Diana T. Yu, the Local Health Officer for Thurston and Mason counties discussed her work on disease prevention, particularly on Tuberculosis. Tuberculosis is a worldwide disease. It is rare disease but it can be infectious, dormant and active, and can be screened and treated. You can have the infection and not feel sick or have the infection and feel sick later in life. Some symptoms include: unexplained weight loss, fever, night sweats and coughing up blood. In 2007, tuberculosis in the US was 24 times more common among Asians. Transmission depends on three factors: infectivity of the person with tuberculosis, the environment in which exposure occurred, and the duration of exposure. The two screen tests for tuberculosis are the Tuberculin skin test and Interferon gamma releasing assays. Medicines for Tuberculosis include Isoniazid, Pyrazinamide, Ethambutol, Rifampicin and Vitamin B6.

King County Department of Public Health

- Denise Genaro Wolf, Personal Health Services Supervisor at the King County Community Health Services Division (CHSD), elaborated more on Tuberculosis. Her focus is working with the community, educating and doing outreach. Her work also includes screening immigrants before they enter the county on a risk of Tuberculosis. There are certain health factors that put you at higher risk for Tuberculosis. Their office does not treat the disease but they can provide proper referrals to a primary care physician or community health clinics.

King County DCHS/Mental Health, Chemical Abuse and Dependency Services Division

- Karen Spoelman, Cross Systems and Treatment Services Coordinator at the King County DCHS/Mental Health, Chemical Abuse and Dependency Services Division, discussed the issue of mental health in the AAPI community. Of 43,902 people in 2010, approximately 8% of AAPIs are being served by the King County Public Mental Health Services. There is often a stigma that stops people from using services. Her office encourages the community to support and encourage the use of mental health services by providing more outreach and increase awareness of the services. She thanked the commission for providing great resources to the community, especially on their website.

Asian Counseling and Referral Services

- Naty Lamug with the Asian Counseling and Referral Services discussed the cultural relevance of Mental Health Services with Filipino clients. There is a need for a better understanding of the Filipino family structure, values and belief system to help mental health service delivery. In discussing the context and demographics of the Philippines, there are over 80 different languages and dialects. The traditional Asian concept of family is one that stems from the notion of time surrounding its existence. The family is the nuclear unit and all social activities are organized around it. The basic unit of family includes father, mother, children, and bilateral extended family relatives. Systems of authority, reciprocity, duty and interdependence have been developed around this system. Interdependence and interpersonal relations resolve to an extent around giving and receiving favors. Respect, honor and loyalty are essential. Given this information, this presents a problem in dealing with mental health issues. When the individual requests services, it is often too late and a result of the family being incapable of handling the problem. Mental health often implies losing face in the community, causing shame, and removing your identity. Everything is interconnected between the client and the family. Some solutions include access to culturally responsive health services, social cultural relationships, educating families, establishing power and credibility, showing empathy, and providing more awareness on individual rights.

Washington State Office of the Insurance Commissioner

- Chewon Lee, Health Insurance Advisor at the Washington State Office of the Insurance Commissioner, provided an update on the Affordable Care Act. OIC's main role is to make sure insurance rights are upheld and that insurance companies and clients are regulated with a focus on consumer protection. The Federal Affordable Care Act provides new health plans, lower costs and extending coverage. Approximately 1 out of 6 individuals are uninsured, 1 out of 5 AAPI are uninsured, and 60% of people have filed for bankruptcy as result of medical costs. There are billions of dollars of annual health costs in Washington with one million people still without insurance. So how does this reform benefit children? Children cannot be denied coverage. Lifetime dollar limits are not allowed and health plans that cover children can no longer exclude limit or deny coverage to any child under age 19 based on a pre-existing condition. Qualifications are that you must be a legal and permanent resident and you must not have insurance in past 6 months. In regards to the youth insurance programs, young adults may be able to stay on their parents' health plan until age 26. This reform also widens the scope on preventative benefits, such as cancer screening. The reform will also affect Medicaid and Medicare services.

PUBLIC COMMENT

Filipino Community of Seattle

- Alma Kern, representative of the Filipino Community of Seattle, thanked the commission for partnering with the Filipino Community of Seattle for the board meeting. She also thanked the commission for all of their work. She provided information on the upcoming 77th anniversary being celebrated by the community this November. The Filipino Community of Seattle is currently the largest Filipino organization in Washington State. The Filipino Community of Seattle center was purchased in 1965 without state or federal funding. The building used to be a bowling alley and is used for marriages, festivals, and services. The community center provides community support through social programs focusing on the arts, youth and family services, citizenship training, and a food bank and lunch programs. In 2011, over 13,000 thousand members were served. There will be a spelling bee contest in February at the center and the Philippine Consulate General from San Francisco will visit soon.

Seattle University School of Law Fred T. Korematsu Center for Law and Equality

- David Perez, Assistant Director of the Fred T. Korematsu Center for Law and Equality at the Seattle University School of Law, provided information on the Washington State Voting Rights Act. In 10 central Washington counties, there exceeds a 33% minority population but there is less than 4% minority political offices held. In many instances, there is disproportionate representation. The act upholds a fundamental principle of our democracy and protects voting practices. There is a problem of at-large voting systems that disenfranchise voters. There will be public hearings in the Senate and House and the center requests commissioners to support the act.

Filipino Lawyers of Washington

- Eric Delos Santos, a representative from the Filipino Lawyers of Washington, provided information on the organization. The Filipino Lawyers of Washington works closely with the Bar and with many minority bar associations and umbrella organizations. The organization has many attorneys that represent the community and understand the cultural barrier to legal access. Some Filipinos experience obstacles at exerting their rights and he encourages those community members to contact the organization. He is also a new board member to the Filipino Community of Seattle.

Northwest Filipino Chamber of Commerce

- Sheila Burrus, President of the Northwest Filipino Chamber of Commerce, introduced herself and the organization. The chamber prides itself for being a platform for referrals. The organization has many resources and has worked with the commission on many occasions. She currently sits on the board of the Filipino Community of Seattle.

Questions/Answers

- Question regarding how the current budget crunch has affected Tuberculosis screening and the treatment process.
 - Funding comes from county government and it is a struggle. There is concierge insurance care where you can pay a fee per month to see a doctor every month but it doesn't cover hospitalization care. – Response from Chewon Lee.

Commissioner Takamura motioned to adjourn the board meeting at 1:34 p.m., seconded by Commissioner Sharma with unanimous approval.

Minutes prepared by Justin Chan
